The newly opened gallery of puppets in Litomerice. Over 250 puppets and fairy decorations in a Gothic tower that was once part of the Litomerice fortifications.

Children can borrow some puppets, play or paint a picture. We are looking forward to seeing you.

Observatory - it is the best preserved part of the city walls with battlements. The prismatic spire was established in 1705 as an observation pavilion - "Lusthaus", also called "Jesuit Observatory". Moat wall was demolished during the construction of the House of Culture and then newly bricked.
